Man O War Publishing, United States, 2014. Hardback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****. This epic novel is one part historical drama, one part love story, and one part spy mystery, but perhaps most of all, it is an homage to a very special people trapped in a deadly, duplicitous, war-torn world. For more than three generations, the Collins-Adderley family pioneered the Florida Keys - growing pineapples, oranges, bananas and tobacco on their plantation, Torchwood - fishing, sponging and turtling the bountiful waters of the Northern Caribbean - treasure diving 17th Century Gold Fleet shipwrecks - and most of all, living and loving in peaceful harmony in one of the most beautiful, idyllic places on Earth. But then World War II harshly descends upon them, and before long, their peace and prosperity vanish and their patriarch, Roy Collins, is tragically lost at sea in a U-boat attack. Gone, too, is Roy's only son and successor, Chris, who joins the U.S. Navy the day after the attack on Pearl Harbor, when a U-boat litters their beach with grisly, bloated bodies of boys not much older than he. Trapped in the South Pacific throughout the war without leave, there is little Chris can do to help his family battle the misfortunes he reads about in their woeful letters. Then, finally, when the war ends, Chris makes his way home only to find conditions worse than he ever imagined. All of their businesses have failed and their plantation is foreclosed, but that pales in the harsh light of their personal misfortunes. Chris' father is three years gone and presumed dead, his mother debilitated by haunting visions of her personal demon, his fiancee Rebecca Adderley is strangely preoccupied with a secret she...
